News from the Director

As Grand Camp finishes July and transitions into August, so our camping season begins to shift from regular summer camp programs to smaller groups and retreats. That is not to say we aren't busy; it is just a change. Our summer staff starts leaving us on August 1st, and this will dwindle down to two who will remain until after Labor Day. We have had an awesome group of summer staff this year. They have worked hard and remained faithful. We will miss them.

When I first started volunteering as a counselor, I remember having camp during the third week in August. Back then, the camp season was often twelve weeks long. The summer has shortened now to seven weeks, and while there may be some very good reasons for this, it means rethinking some of the work we do. And this is only one change we have to respond to.

Of course, this is the challenge: How do we maintain our mission of connecting people with God and, at the same time, adapt to a world that is rapidly changing around us? The answer is to be fearless in what we do and flexible in how we do it. Dynamic organizations operate with this tension between maintaining traditions that create a strong foundation for the mission and new programs.

Over the last year, there have been a number of changes – some are cosmetic, but others are fundamental to our mission. As we continue to explore the ways we must adapt in order to connect people with God, we need to know how you feel. In mid-July, we had two listening sessions, one at Camp Mack and the other at the Kokomo Church of the Brethren. These sessions gave us a great deal of feedback that we will share in the future as the Indiana Camp Board completes its work. We also are sending a link to a survey that we hope you will complete, whether you attended a listening session or not. The link should come to you in an email during the first week of August.

The information gathered will inform the decisions of the Indiana Camp Board and the staff as we move forward into a new beginning for Camp Mack. Through it all, we remain expectant for the voice of the Holy Spirit and committed to listening to the people who have given time, talent, and financial support to this ministry.

There is no question we have to do new and responsive programs in order to meet our mission. But we can never forget that whatever we do must be driven by our values as an arm of the Church and the mission itself. I look forward to hearing from you as we continue to travel together in Christian camping.

Enjoy God's Beauty

God had created so much beauty for each of us to enjoy. In the height of summer we are enjoying not only the lush green grass that carpets areas we play in and walk on or just gaze upon. The trees are full of many shapes and sizes of leaves and needles that shade us and give us dimension. At Camp Mack there is beautiful Lake Waubee that, at times, is smooth as glass and other times has white caps. The lake can be blue or green and at the right time in the morning or evening it has a reflection of orange that is stunning.

The flowers and bushes have splashes of color that I am sure God delights in as He sees the enjoyment that it gives each of us. The prairie is alive and well with colors and plants we do not often see as well.

I have often marveled at the beauty of the rocks that have gone into many buildings and memorials around Camp Mack. The natural beauty of each rock is amazing in itself not to mention the integrity and strength it gives to the buildings.

It is such a pleasure to work in the midst of the beauty of creation that we have at Camp Mack. The changing seasons bring a variety of beauty that God has given us to enjoy and look forward to. We hear many times of the beauty of Camp Mack as guests come to enjoy a day or weekend or week. We are so fortunate for the vision of those selecting this spot over 90 years ago and for the many caretakers over the years.

Enjoy the beauty God has given us all over this great big world. It is an amazing gift God has bestowed upon us. Come enjoy this beautiful place we call Camp Mack and while you are here give thanks to God and help us to preserve this sanctuary.

Junior High Work Camp

We were blessed this past week with the Church of the Brethren General offices Junior High work camp. We had eleven junior high kids and five adult leaders. They blessed us with two full days of labor. We split into two smaller groups with one group working on the east side of Ulrich and the other group painting the letter cabins. For the painting group we had started earlier this summer painting that group of cabins. Our goal is to paint a group of cabins every summer and we have not met that goal the last couple of summers. With the help of this group of junior high kids we were able to paint seven of the letter cabins. We just have a little touch up and we need to put the letters back above the doors and this group of cabins is done. What a difference a little paint and a willing group of kids can make! The other group of kids worked on Ulrich. We worked on the east side with the west side just about ready to put on siding. They tore off the old cedar shake siding and then put on the sheets of insulation. We then put the wrap on to seal the building and started to put on the window extensions. We are now ready for Nick to come and finish wrapping the outside of the windows with aluminum and then we are ready to start the siding process.

What a difference eleven junior high kids and five adults made in two days! I had been getting a little discouraged at the pace of the progress of siding this building. We are just having trouble finding time for staff to work at it. This was such a lift for all of us.

Bless the hearts of volunteers!!

The Mighty Milkweed

Summer is an exciting season for the wildflower and insect world at camp. We are fortunate to have 3 varieties of Milkweed at camp. Now, most people when they hear Milkweed mentioned, think of Monarch butterflies migrating and landing on Common Milkweed. There is so much more! At camp, we have the Common Milkweed, Butterflyweed, and Swamp Milkweed. The milkweed provides nourishment for growing Monarch larvae, nectar for many insects, and nesting material for Finches, Orioles, and Yellow Warblers. ~Jessie Kreider, Program Director

Powdery Sweetness and Fond Memories

Powdered sugar is one of my favorite sugars to use in the kitchen. I have many fond memories, and a few not so fond ones, of learning how to ice and decorate cakes for 4-H. My grandmother would bring her big metal tin of Wilton decorating tips over and we would make frosting together. If you have ever used powder sugar you know just how messy it can be! When you are mixing powdered sugar in a mixer you have to be careful not to turn your mixer on too high of a speed or you end up with a sugary mess all over the place! I often ended up with sugar in my hair and all over my face when we made frosting. And as a kid having powdered sugar everywhere was great, because then I got to use my fingers to “lick” the dust up! The first few times we were decorating I ended up getting a belly ache from all the sugar I consumed, so I quickly learned to limit my “taste testing”.

Powdered sugar is exactly what its name implies, granulated sugar that has been ground into a fine powder. It comes in several finenesses, XXX, XXXX, and 10X. The more X’s the finer the sugar particles. It also goes by several different names. Confectioners sugar, powdered sugar and icing sugar are all the same product. You can make your own powdered sugar by grinding granulated sugar in a coffee grinder or in a mortar and pestle and then adding a little corn starch which prevents clumping.

This Chocolate Frosting Recipe has quickly become my favorite. I love putting it on cupcakes and then adding some rainbow sprinkles to the top.

Whipped Chocolate Buttercream Frosting

1 ½ cups butter, at room temperature
4 cups powdered sugar
¾ cup cocoa powder
4 tablespoons heavy whipping cream
2 teaspoons vanilla extract
Pinch of salt

In the bowl of an electric stand mixer with the whisk attachment, whisk butter and sugar on medium-high speed until fluffy approx. 5 minutes. Scrape bowl half way through mixing. Add cocoa powder, vanilla, and salt. Mix on low for 30 seconds. Mix in heavy cream 1 tablespoon at a time. Scrape the bowl after all the cream has been added. Mix on medium-high speed for 3-5 minutes, until light and fluffy.

Churches and groups, contact us about Food Court ideas and what you would like to sell and serve. Also, please send us pictures and descriptions of larger items for the Camp Mack Auction so we can start forming a sale bill to advertise ahead of time. We already have donations of antique Persian rugs, an antique marble-top bureau, and a number of other items! Thank you for helping to make this the biggest festival yet!

For questions regarding the festival, email Deb Roe at debra@campmack.org and she will forward your questions to the appropriate committee members.
